Nye Gets Voters' Approval For Lieutenant Governor—Balloting Light

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—Former Congressman John McSweeney, Wooster, captured the Democratic nomination for governor today by rolling up a plurality of more than 20,000 votes in Cuyahoga county and by displaying great strength in other populous centers. He will run against Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, in the November 3 general election.

McSweeney staged a sensational finish to win over State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, whose personal organization won him a majority of the counties but was unable to offset McSweeney's exceptional strength in Cuyahoga county.

Governor Bricker, seeking a third term, out-pollled all other candidates on both tickets, with 339,293 votes, although he has no Republican primary opposition.

Knisley Third

Clarence Knisley, former state treasurer, finished third in the Democratic gubernatorial race, with 43,700 votes in almost complete returns. Walter Heer, Franklin county Democratic chairman, backed by a number of old line party leaders including Ray T. Miller, Cuyahoga county chairman, ran a poor fourth, getting 39,880 votes. Frank Dye, Columbus, the fifth placer, received only 12,190.

Indicating a return of party harmony lacking for many years, the defeated candidates promptly and with apparent sincerity pledged McSweeney their wholehearted support in the general election. Ferguson was the first to concede defeat and congratulate the winner. The others quickly followed suit.

Latest returns indicated that the total primary vote was the lowest in 22 years and even dropped below the 700,000 forecast of state election experts. Almost complete returns showed

LOAFERS OUSTED FROM SHIP JOBS ON NAVY ORDER

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 12—Officials of the Moore Drydock company reported today that six of their shipyard workers had been discharged "at the request of the Navy" for chronic loafing.

Charles C. Adams, company personnel director, intimated the dismissals were caused by the government's "work or fight" order, saying the names of most of the men had been turned over to their draft boards so that they may be removed from the deferred lists and made subject to Army induction.

Death Cart in Warsaw Ghetto

This picture smuggled out of Warsaw shows a daily visit of the death cart to the ghetto, where Jews starve to death under the Nazi "New Order." The dead are piled into the wagon and hauled away to be thrown into common graves. In Warsaw, even Christian Poles are not entitled to meat, coffee or milk. Restrictions on rations are worse for Jews. This explains the skeleton appearance of the dead that are daily taken from the ghetto.

Business Leaders Urge 10 Per Cent Sales Tax

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—Challenging the treasury program, the United States Chamber of Commerce today called on Congress to double the pending $6,271,000,000 tax bill through enactment of a 10 percent retail sales tax and a five percent payroll and income withholding levy.

The sales and withholding taxes, Chamber spokesmen told the Senate Finance Committee, would raise more than $10,000,000,000, while the full program would produce $12,000,000,000 a year in new revenue.

The Chamber proposed a corporate normal tax and war surtax of not more than 35 percent, with adjustments for net incomes below $25,000.

It recommended government bond issuances and debt financing designed to hold inflationary borrowing from banks to a minimum, along with encouragement for greater purchases of government securities.

Outlining the organization's general tax program, Ellsworth C. Alvord, of Washington, chairman of its Federal Finance Committee, stated that the treasury insists the tax bill should (1) raise the minimum amount of added revenues required to finance the war, and (2) work as an anti-inflationary weapon.

"We challenge the treasury program and the House bill," he said. "They pass neither of the two tests. Furthermore, the two tests themselves are insufficient. Our government needs the maximum revenues, not the minimum, and must borrow the balance. Neither the treasury program nor the House bill will contribute materially to the fight against inflation."

"Our shoulders are getting broader and broader and we can carry the load," was the way one company spokesman phrased an answer to the complaints of A. M. Oppenheimer, president of the Apollo Steel Co., Apollo, Pa.

An official of the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, huge independent, who asked that his name be omitted, said:

"All distribution of steel is done under a priority system set up by the war production board to which we are conforming."

The statement was an answer to charges by Oppenheimer that J & L no longer was sending steel to its plant for rolling purposes and, in fact, was endangering the livelihood of small plants by engaging active competition.

The J. & L. spokesman declared that if the Apollo steel company has not been receiving steel ingots it is not the fault of the company but the fault of the war production board and its allocation program.

"We must live up to the regulations of the WPB," he said.

LAGUARDIA LOSES VOTE

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia lost his vote in this year's primaries.

He admitted that his failure to notify the board of elections of his change of address to Gracie Mansion, recently completed city "White House" made him ineligible to cast his ballot in yesterday's elections.

Few Local Contests Coupled With War Interest Cuts Balloting

Casting fewer than 2,800 votes, one of the lowest totals in recent years, Pickaway county citizens went to the polls Tuesday to choose nominees for representative to the general assembly, for auditor and commissioner, and to add their voices to district and state primaries.

The fact that there were so few local contests and that interest in the war and the harvest of a bumper corn crop are at a peak in the community caused the number of ballots to be far below the normal total in the county.

Election board officials said that with the exception of a single precinct, Darby township North, all were reported prior to 10 p. m. Tuesday. Had this precinct reported at the same time as the others the board would have completed its work before midnight.

"MITSUBISHI" SPEEDS EFFORT IN PLANE PLANT

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 12—"Mitsubishi" may sound like Japanese baby-talk to the average reader, but to workers at the Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant it is a challenge to build a better aircraft engine.

Mitsubishi is the name of an 1,100-horsepower motor taken from a Japanese plane shot down in the Pacific recently. It was sent to the factory by the army for study of engineers in the plant's research laboratory.

Workers also have an opportunity to examine the disassembled machine which is similar to the Wright Cyclone engine and which, according to engineers, offers keen competition in performance.

Within the next month it will be displayed at the four other plants of the company as a means of acquainting aircraft engine workers with its construction.

ITALIAN FORCES IMITATE HUNS, MURDER CROATS

LONDON, Aug. 12—In imitation of Hitler's tactics, Italian forces in Yugoslavia have burned down six Croat villages and shot more than 200 Croats, said a Reuters dispatch today quoting reports from the Italian frontier.

The executions were said to be in revenge for help the villagers had given relatives who escaped to the mountain strongholds of Draja Mihailovich, Yugoslav guerrilla leader.

Plea To Aid War Effort Is Ignored

Labor Board's Appeal To Outlaw Strikers Falls On Deaf Ears

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 12—An appeal from the War Labor Board "not to forget the boys fighting for us in the Solomon islands" was rejected today by leaders of an outlaw strike of 1,000 workers at the General Cable corporation's Bayonne plant.

As the walkout threatened to spread to the 2,300 workers at the corporation's Perth Amboy, N. J., plant, Michael Petrakian, chairman of the committee leading the strike, said it would continue until their demands were met.

His answer came in reply to an appeal by William H. Davis, chairman of the WLB which recently ruled against demands of the strikers for a ten-cent-per-hour wage increase. The plant is engaged in Navy contracts.

"As loyal and patriotic citizens, the workers must cooperate with their International Union's officers (who have repudiated the strike) and their government," Davis said, "to resume production and redouble their efforts to make up for the time lost through the strike."

Petrakian said employees of the Perth Amboy factory would vote today to walk out at midnight tomorrow unless the company grants their demands for a ten-cent-an-hour increase in pay. The Bayonne employees walked out yesterday after the War Labor Board turned down their pay demand.

WHEAT, FRUITS BELOW AVERAGE ON OHIO FARMS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—While Ohio's crop conditions were generally favorable on August 1, several of the state's most important crops—wheat, potatoes, peaches and cherries—will fall considerably below last year's yields, the Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting Service announced today.

Largest single decrease is in the anticipated peach crop, which probably will reach 768,000 bushels, as compared with the 1941 bumper crop of 1,148,000 bushels. The wheat yield this year is placed at an average of 21 bushels to the acre compared to last year's 25 and the potato harvest, which netted 10,614,000 bushels last year, is expected to yield only 9,523,000 for an average of 107 bushels to the acre.

Corn gives promise of a yield of 60 bushels per acre and a production of 167,500,000 bushels. This compares with 49.5 bushels per acre and a production of 169,974,000 bushels last year.

Meanwhile anticipated production of hay, soybeans, tobacco, pastures, apples, pears, grapes, chickens and eggs is pictured as "very bright."

LEGION GUARD CARRIES COLORS OF AUXILIARY

New Holland's courageous William Skinner remains undaunted! Mr. Skinner, a leader in New Holland's Arch post, American Legion, was designated to direct a color guard to Circleville Wednesday to participate in the send-off for a party of 61 draftees.

The trip to the county seat was organized in a hurry, Skinner and his aides gathering their paraphernalia in a few moments time.

The crew from New Holland was already to enter the parade when the post's flag, at least the flag supposed to be the post's, was unfurled. It turned out to be the Auxiliary's emblem.

Did Skinner and his aides stay out of the parade? They did not. They took that flag into the procession and marched down the middle of the street as proud to be in the send-off celebration as any other person attending it.

Demonstrators Warned That Police And Soldiers Will Quell Disturbances

BOMBAY, Aug. 12—The strict repressive measures invoked by British authorities to quell the nationwide riots incited by the arrest of Mohandas K. Gandhi and other leaders of the Congress party, began to bear fruit today.

Public whippings and, in some cases, death penalties, seemed to have had a cooling effect on the leaders who took over the civil disobedience campaign the moment Gandhi went to prison.

All of the principal cities of India were like armed camps as the fourth day of the outlaw rebellion dawned, but in Bombay there was an atmosphere of tense quiet.

A tour of the city revealed that some shops had reopened and a few automobiles were to be seen on the streets. Armed soldiers were stationed everywhere.

The Bombay death toll now has been placed at 34, with probably 100 countywide. Other hundreds have been injured and arrests have run into the thousands. All prisoners are being held incommunicado.

Nearly a score of deaths were reported yesterday in Bombay alone, bringing its total to 31 in three days of rioting. Five deaths were reported from Patna and three from Madras. Additional deaths have been reported from other areas since Sunday.

Sir Robert Lumley, governor of Bombay, warned the demonstrators that he had instructed police and supporting military units "to take the strongest measures, whenever necessary" to quell disturbances of public order.

CITIZENS HONOR 61 MEN LEAVING FOR ARMY DUTY

First public send-off of draftees was conducted Wednesday in Circleville when 61 men accepted two weeks ago for training left by bus for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

The send-off program was planned by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce, with a sound truck providing music and hundreds of friends and relatives gathering at the courthouse plaza to bid the boys goodbye.

The soldiers-to-be entered the buses at the courthouse. Court street from the courthouse to High street was lined with townspeople.

WILLIAM DUDLEY PELLEY DRAWS 15 YEAR TERM

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 12—William Dudley Pelley, America's No. 1 secessionist and self-styled original Hitler man, today was sentenced to serve 15 years in federal prison by Judge Robert C. Baltzell in United States district court.

The Fascist leader and two associates in publication of "The Galilean," Miss Agnes Marian Henderson, and Lawrence A. Brown, were sentenced on criminal sedition charges, of which they had been found guilty by a federal court jury in Indianapolis last Wednesday night.

CLAYPOOL AGAIN SWEEPS COUNTY; EDGE IS 4 TO 1

Congressman Harold K. Claypool of Chillicothe, always supported heavily in Pickaway county, swept over the opposition provided by Robert U. Hastings, Fairfield county prosecuting attorney, in Tuesday's primary by a margin of almost four to one here.

Claypool's unofficial total was 1,511 votes against 431 for Hastings, the Lancaster attorney making his first bid in district politics.

Claypool didn't lose a single precinct running very well in the city and in all parts of the county. In two precincts Hastings failed to receive a vote while in three he received one ballot and in six he was given two votes.

Claypool's top total in any precinct was in Third Ward B where he received 195 and First Ward A where he was given 94.

On the Republican side of the ticket, Dr. Walter Brehm of Logan, campaigning with committee support, led his opponent, Clarence Chute of New Lexington, in Pickaway county by more than two to one, unofficial totals giving Brehm 490 and Chute 202.

The Hocking county man represents his county in the Ohio assembly. Chute was an unsuccessful candidate two years ago.

The single 11th district committee race saw Democrats choose Walter Gordon of Lancaster over James Debnay of New Lexington, the local vote being 979 to 419. Tom A. Renick, Circleville Republican, was unopposed for state central committee on the G. O. P. ticket as was Mrs. Loy Hoyt of Chillicothe for committeewoman.

Mrs. Hulise Hays of North Court street was reelected Democratic state central committeewoman without opposition. Her vote here was 1,244 ballots.

KIERNAN SEES GRINS IN STATE VOTE PROMISES

By WALTER KIERNAN International News Service Writer

State political platforms are going to be something to look at this year.

We will have governors running on second front planks, sheriffs campaigning on I-was-for-war-100-years-ago planks and dogcatchers fighting for immediate freedom-for-India-until - election day.

There will be very little said about highway appropriations, the state budget or local taxes.

There will be less said about the capabilities of the candidates.

There is nothing than can produce as many straw issues as a political campaign and this one will produce some honeys.

Candidates who couldn't find Guam on the map will tell how valiantly they struggled to fortify it . . . as though that would have ended the war in the first two hours.

Pearl Harbor will be mentioned at least once in every speech.

Thought for the day: the hockey season approaches.

Actual Details Lacking On Bitter Fighting—Russians Continue Retreat

Bulletin

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Aug. 12—United States marines today were reported striking deep into enemy positions in the Solomon islands. There was every indication that the Americans are firmly established at their bridgeheads on Tulagi, Florida and Guadalcanal islands and had been substantially reinforced under cover of allied naval guns and bombing planes.

While giant bombers under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command maintained a ceaseless shuttle attack with 2,000-pound bombs against Japanese reinforcement bases throughout the whole southwestern Pacific, a feeling of "cautious optimism" arose in Australia.

Bitter fighting was reported in progress between the successfully-landed Marines and enemy occupational forces but actual details were lacking.

Advance Reported

Australian radio commentators broadcasting from "advanced bases" said it was generally believed the attacking American forces are advancing steadily toward their objectives.

There was no announcement as to landing of additional reinforcements to aid the initial occupational forces of Marines. But it was obvious that the aerial canopy spread by American and Australian planes and the ceaseless barrage maintained by naval guns were for the purpose of covering new landings.

Meanwhile, MacArthur's bombing planes relentlessly pummeled Japanese shipping and rocked enemy-held island bases to prevent Nipponese reinforcements from reaching the Solomon battle-ground.

The allied nations maintained the offensive on three vital sectors today in the widening global warfare. Sea, land and air forces stormed Japanese bases in the vital Solomon island chain and a "spirit of cautious optimism" spread in United Nations war councils.

The American Air Force in China reported continued raids on Japanese bases and the RAF threw 300 to 400 bombers into a night attack on Mainz, important German industrial and transportation center.

Business Leaders Urge 10 Per Cent Sales Tax

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—Challenging the treasury program, the United States Chamber of Commerce today called on Congress to double the pending $6,271,000,000 tax bill through enactment of a 10 percent retail sales tax and a five percent payroll and income withholding levy.

The sales and withholding taxes, Chamber spokesmen told the Senate Finance Committee, would raise more than $10,000,000,000, while the full program would produce $12,000,000,000 a year in new revenue.

DRAFT SEEN AS NECESSITY FOR WAR LABORERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—Despite congressional criticism, Manpower Commission officials maintained today that compulsion will be necessary to effectively mobilize the nation's human resources for total war.

A national service act, endorsed by Manpower officials and giving the government authority to order its citizens into jobs where they can best aid the war effort, is in the "drafting" stage, but indications are that it will not make its appearance until after the November elections.

A special House committee investigating the war effort charged, however, that compulsion would not be a "cure-all" for the nation's manpower problem and termed the Manpower Commission's consideration of such legislation "a confusion of weakness and inadequacy."

All of the principal cities of India were like armed camps as the fourth day of the outlaw rebellion dawned, but in Bombay there was an atmosphere of tense quiet.

A tour of the city revealed that some shops had reopened and a few automobiles were to be seen on the streets. Armed soldiers were stationed everywhere.

The Bombay death toll now has been placed at 34, with probably 100 countrywide. Other hundreds have been injured and arrests have run into the thousands. All prisoners are being held incommunicado.

Nearly a score of deaths were reported yesterday in Bombay alone, bringing its total to 31 in three days of rioting. Five deaths were reported from Patna and three from Madras. Additional deaths have been reported from other areas since Sunday.

Sir Robert Lumley, governor of Bombay, warned the demonstrators that he had instructed police and supporting military units "to take the strongest measures, whenever necessary" to quell disturbances of public order.

CITIZENS HONOR 61 MEN LEAVING FOR ARMY DUTY

First public send-off of draftees was conducted Wednesday in Circleville when 61 men accepted two weeks ago for training left by bus for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

The send-off program was planned by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce, with a sound truck providing music and hundreds of friends and relatives gathering at the courthouse plaza to bid the boys goodbye.

The soldiers-to-be entered the buses at the courthouse. Court street from the courthouse to High street was lined with townspeople.

WILLIAM DUDLEY PELLEY DRAWS 15 YEAR TERM

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 12—William Dudley Pelley, America's No. 1 seditionist and self-styled original Hitler man, today was sentenced to serve 15 years in federal prison by Judge Robert C. Baltzell in United States district court.

The Fascist leader and two associates in publication of "The Galilean," Miss Agnes Marian Henderson, and Lawrence A. Brown, were sentenced on criminal sedition charges, of which they had been found guilty by a federal court jury in Indianapolis last Wednesday night.

JOHN McSweeney, who staged a sensational finish in Tuesday's Democratic primary, defeating Joseph T. Ferguson for the gubernatorial nomination.

CLAYPOOL AGAIN SWEEPS COUNTY; EDGE IS 4 TO 1

Congressman Harold K. Claypool of Chillicothe, always supported heavily in Pickaway county, swept over the opposition provided by Robert U. Hastings, Fairfield county prosecuting attorney, in Tuesday's primary by a margin of almost four to one here.

Claypool's unofficial total was 1,511 votes against 431 for Hastings, the Lancaster attorney making his first bid in district politics.

Claypool didn't lose a single precinct running very well in the city and in all parts of the county. In two precincts Hastings failed to receive a vote while in three he received one ballot and in six he was given two votes.

Claypool's top total in any precinct was in Third Ward B where he received 195 and First Ward A where he was given 94.

On the Republican side of the ticket, Dr. Walter Brehm of Logan, campaigning with committee support, led his opponent, Clarence Chute of New Lexington, in Pickaway county by more than two to one, unofficial totals giving Brehm 490 and Chute 202. The Hocking county man represents his county in the Ohio assembly. Chute was an unsuccessful candidate two years ago.

The single 11th district committee race saw Democrats choose Walter Gordon of Lancaster over James Debeney of New Lexington, the local vote being 979 to 419. Tom A. Renick, Circleville Republican, was unopposed for state central committee on the G. O. P. ticket as was Mrs. Loy Hoyt of Chillicothe for committeewoman.

Mrs. Hulse Hays of North Court street was reelected Democratic state central committeewoman without opposition. Her vote here was 1,244 ballots.

KIERNAN SEES GRINS IN STATE VOTE PROMISES

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Writer
State political platforms are going to be something to look at this year.

We will have governors running on second front planks, sheriffs campaigning on I-was-for-war-100-years-ago planks and dogcatchers fighting for immediate freedom-for-India-until - election day.

There will be very little said about highway appropriations, the state budget or local taxes.

There will be less said about the capabilities of the candidates.

There is nothing than can produce as many straw issues as a political campaign and this one will produce some honeys.

Candidates who couldn't find Guam on the map will tell how valiantly they struggled to fortify it... as though that would have ended the war in the first two hours.

Pearl Harbor will be mentioned at least once in every speech.

Thought for the day: the hockey season approaches.

Giant Bombers Rain Death And Destruction On Nipponese Bases

OPTIMISM ON INCREASE

Actual Details Lacking On Bitter Fighting—Russians Continue Retreat

Bulletin

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Aug. 12—United States marines today were reported striking deep into enemy positions in the Solomon islands. There was every indication that the Americans are firmly established at their bridgeheads on Tulagi, Florida and Guadalcanal islands and had been substantially reinforced under cover of allied naval guns and bombing planes.

While giant bombers under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command maintained a ceaseless shuttle attack with 2,000-pound bombs against Japanese reinforcement bases throughout the whole southwestern Pacific, a feeling of "cautious optimism" arose in Australia.

Bitter fighting was reported in progress between the successfully-landed Marines and enemy occupational forces but actual details were lacking.

Advance Reported
Australian radio commentators broadcasting from "advanced bases" said it was generally believed the attacking American forces are advancing steadily toward their objectives.

There was no announcement as to landing of additional reinforcements to aid the initial occupational forces of Marines. But it was obvious that the aerial campaign spread by American and Australian planes and the ceaseless barrage maintained by naval guns were for the purpose of covering new landings.

Meanwhile, MacArthur's bombing planes relentlessly pummeled Japanese shipping and rocked enemy-held island bases to prevent Nipponese reinforcements from reaching the Solomon battle-ground.

The allied nations maintained the offensive on three vital sectors today in the widening global warfare. Sea, land and air forces stormed Japanese bases in the vital Solomon island chain and a "spirit of cautious optimism" spread in United Nations war councils.

The American Air Force in China reported continued raids on Japanese bases and the RAF threw 300 to 400 bombers into a night attack on Mainz, important German industrial and transportation center.

At least one u-boat operating in the area where the Eagle was sunk was destroyed, it was announced.

The Italians previously claimed they had sunk the Eagle in January, 1941.

withdrew slowly, putting the torch to their treasured villages and their stores of grain and oil. The enemy advanced slowly through the Caucasus but it was not a rich conquest.

Flaming smoking towns, blazing charred wheatfields awaited the voracious Nazis pushing down the Kuban valley.

No revealing official announcements were made today on the course of the struggle for the Solomon island bases. "Action continues in the Tulagi area," the U. S. Navy announced tersely.

The Japanese have had nothing to say about the progress since their boastful claim that the allied ships had been sunk and the landing parties annihilated. This boast did not jibe with reports of frantic Japanese efforts to get reinforcements to the battle area—a necessity that would not exist if they had won the fight.

Moscow admitted that the German column driving southeast of Armavir had penetrated 75 miles beyond the town on the road to the rich Grozny oilfields along the Caspian sea. But Soviet strategists were apparently less alarmed by this advance than by the growing Nazi strength on the Stalingrad front.

Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock threw all available reserves into action on this sector. He was reported halted south of the Don but heavy fighting was still going on inside the Don bend, southeast of Kletska.

The RAF raid on Mainz was accompanied by continued night attacks on the French coast. Formations roared over the channel at regular intervals and residents of the English coast heard steady gunfire from the direction of Calais.

MRS. CRISWELL HAS BRIEF TOUR IN OHIO POLITICS

Mrs. Bess Willis Criswell, wife of Robert E. Criswell, formerly of Circleville, took a flyer into politics Tuesday by running for Democratic nomination for representative to Congress from Franklin county. But her effort went for naught.

Mrs. Criswell ran last in a field of six candidates, she being the only woman seeking nomination. Her vote total was 548.

The Rev. Walter F. Rutherford of Wagner Memorial U. B. church, Columbus, was also in the race, but he too failed to make the grade. The pastor, a former Circleville minister, received 1,103 to rank fourth.

Democratic nomination was won by Arthur L. Lameck with 7,406 votes. He will meet Congressman John M. Vorys, Republican incumbent, in November.

646,244 votes for governor on both tickets, with Republicans out-voting Democrats by about 35,000.

Hummel Again

The most important contest on the Republican ticket, for secretary of state, was won hands down by Edward J. Hummel, of Cincinnati, rolling up a plurality of more than 16,000 votes over Dale Stump, of Columbus.

The Democrats nominated George D. Nye, Waverly, for lieutenant governor, over R. M. Winegardner, Washington C. H., and Nye will oppose Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, a Republican, in November. Herbert, like State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, Akron, and Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, Cleveland, both Republicans, had no primary opposition.

Secretary of State Sweeney, was unopposed on the Democratic ticket, and the Democrats nominated Robert S. Cox, Millersburg, for state treasurer and Herbert S. Duffy, Columbus, for attorney general.

Judge Roy H. Williams, Sandusky Republican seeking a second term on the state supreme court, easily bested his lone opponent, Judge Guy B. Findley, Elyria.

LEGION HONORS JAMES SHEA AT FAREWELL PARTY

Filled to capacity Tuesday evening were the American Legion club rooms, North Court street, for the farewell party honoring James T. Shea, commander of the Howard Hall Post, American Legion, who left Wednesday morning for army service. Mr. Shea, who served as a marine in World War I, is the first member of the Circleville legion unit, to leave for service in World War II.

During the course of the delightfully informal evening, Edward Ebert in behalf of Howard Hall Post presented Mr. Shea a gold mounted pen and pencil set. T. E. Wilson for the Legion Club presented him a War Bond of $100 maturity value. He received also a fine leather money belt with a one dollar bill in each compartment and a matching folder for four small photographs from the American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. Orin W. Dreisbach making the presentation.

Three other awards of War Saving stamps presented guests during the evening were immediately given Mr. Shea as farewell courtesy gifts.

A fine floor show, including tap and acrobatic dancing and splendid accordion music, was a featured part of the entertainment, the affair being concluded with an excellent buffet lunch.

Guests were present from Columbus, Lancaster, Chillicothe, New Holland, Amanda and Williamsport in addition to various parts of Pickaway county.

COUNCIL MEETS THURSDAY TO NAME MEMBER

Circleville council, one man short since resignation of Byron Eby who is removing to Roseville, will meet in special session Thursday at 8 p. m. to name a successor to Mr. Eby.

The special meeting was called by petition of J. D. Mason, Frank A. Lynch, W. E. Wallace and George L. Crites, comprising a council majority. Notices were given to each member of council by the police department.

Council is expected to reach an agreement on Eby's successor.
Had council not decided to act, appointment would have been up to Mayor Ben H. Gordon because the 30 days in which council must appoint will expire Saturday.

CLARK GABLE TO SEE SERVICE AS BUCK PRIVATE

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 12—Clark Gable, one of Hollywood's top flight film stars, was to be sworn into the Army as a buck private today.

After completing his three-months' basic training at an Army camp, as yet unannounced, the 41-year-old screen favorite is slated to enter the Army Air Force officer candidates' training school at Miami, Fla.

When and where Gable will take the service oath today was to be a closely-guarded secret until within an hour or so of the ceremony.

Flaming smoking towns, blazing charred wheatfields awaited the voracious Nazis pushing down the Kuban valley.

No revealing official announcements were made today on the course of the struggle for the Solomon island bases. "Action continues in the Tulagi area," the U. S. Navy announced tersely.

The Japanese have had nothing to say about the progress since their boastful claim that the allied ships had been sunk and the landing parties annihilated. This boast did not jibe with reports of frantic Japanese efforts to get reinforcements to the battle area—a necessity that would not exist if they had won the fight.

Moscow admitted that the German column driving southeast of Armariv had penetrated 75 miles beyond the town on the road to the rich Grozny oilfields along the Caspian sea. But Soviet strategists were apparently less alarmed by this advance than by the growing Nazi strength on the Stalingrad front.

The RAF raid on Mainz was accompanied by continued night attacks on the French coast. Formations roared over the channel at regular intervals and residents of the English coast heard steady gunfire from the direction of Calais.

MRS. CRISWELL HAS BRIEF TOUR IN OHIO POLITICS

Mrs. Bess Willis Criswell, wife of Robert E. Criswell, formerly of Circleville, took a flyer into politics Tuesday by running for Democratic nomination for representative to Congress from Franklin county. But her effort went for naught.

Mrs. Criswell ran last in a field of six candidates, she being the only woman seeking nomination. Her vote total was 548.

The Rev. Walter F. Rutherford of Wagner Memorial U. B. church, Columbus, was also in the race, but he too failed to make the grade. The pastor, a former Circleville minister, received 1,103 to rank fourth.

Democratic nomination was won by Arthur L. Lamneck with 7,406 votes. He will meet Congressman John M. Vorys, Republican incumbent, in November.

State Auditor Swamped By Heavy Opposition In Cleveland Area

646,244 votes for governor on both tickets, with Republicans out-voting Democrats by about 35,000.

Hummel Again
The most important contest on the Republican ticket, for secretary of state, was won hands down by Edward J. Hummel, of Cincinnati, rolling up a plurality of more than 16,000 votes over Dale Stump, of Columbus.

The Democrats nominated George D. Nye, Waverly, for lieutenant governor, over R. M. Winegardner, Washington C. H., and Nye will oppose Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, a Republican, in November. Herbert, like State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, Akron, and Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, Cleveland, both Republicans, had no primary opposition.

Secretary of State Sweeney, was unopposed on the Democratic ticket, and the Democrats nominated Robert S. Cox, Millersburg, for state treasurer and Herbert S. Duffy, Columbus, for attorney general.

Judge Roy H. Williams, Sandusky Republican seeking a second term on the state supreme court, easily bested his lone opponent, Judge Guy B. Findley, Elyria.

LEGION HONORS JAMES SHEA AT FAREWELL PARTY

Filled to capacity Tuesday evening were the American Legion club rooms, North Court street, for the farewell party honoring James T. Shea, commander of the Howard Hall Post, American Legion, who left Wednesday morning for army service. Mr. Shea, who served as a marine in World War I, is the first member of the Circleville legion unit, to leave for service in World War II.

During the course of the delightfully informal evening, Edward Ebert in behalf of Howard Hall Post presented Mr. Shea a gold mounted pen and pencil set. T. E. Wilson for the Legion Club presented him a War Bond of $100 maturity value. He received also a fine leather money belt with a one dollar bill in each compartment and a matching folder for four small photographs from the American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. Orin W. Dreisbach making the presentation.

Three other awards of War Saving stamps presented guests during the evening were immediately given Mr. Shea as farewell courtesy gifts.

A fine floor show, including tap and acrobatic dancing and splendid accordion music, was a featured part of the entertainment, the affair being concluded with an excellent buffet lunch.

Guests were present from Columbus, Lancaster, Chillicothe, New Holland, Amanda and Williamsport in addition to various parts of Pickaway county.

GRID FANS GET AIR RAID CHECK ON WEST COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12—"Air raid checks" allowing football fans a refund if the game is broken up by enemy attack before the end of the first half, will go into effect in Pacific coast conference stadiums this fall.

That, among other changes streamlining the gridiron sport to wartime conditions, was decided on yesterday at a meeting of graduate managers and athletic directors of the ten conference schools.

It marked the first time in the history of college football a regulation was adopted fixing a time-played limit for box office purposes similar to baseball's rain-check rule. Two full quarters were set as the minimum for a completed game.

In the not too far-fetched possibility that the game is halted by Japanese bombs before half-time, customers may stop at the boxoffice for a refund on their way to the nearest air raid shelter.

TOKEN UNIT OF U. S. PILOTS AIDS RAF IN DESERT

CAIRO, Aug. 12—A token unit of American pilots has gone into action with RAF fighter squadrons in the African desert it was disclosed today with the announcement that the fighting arm of the U. S. Air Corps in this area is under command of Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton.

U. S. bomber squadrons, which have been in service in the middle east for some weeks, are under command of Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton.

The American fighter pilots, while few in number, are a vanguard of considerable forces to come, it was intimated. The present group's chief function is to study RAF methods of desert fighting and to gain the experience that will permit quick coordination of the USAC and the RAF when the main American forces arrive.

UNREAL INDIA

IN WHAT he himself considers the long run, Gandhi may be right. There are certain spiritual values in turning the other cheek. India does not look at life and time as occidental peoples do. There is a famous Buddhist legend, related by Lafcadio Hearn, of the man who, in a dream, found himself climbing a high mountain and making hard work of it. He found that the mountain was made of a huge pile of skulls, hundreds and thousands of them. He learned, before he woke, that the skulls were all his own, that he had lived through all those incarnations.

The Mahatma faces life with this sort of conditioning. You work for a principle, such as freedom for your people, and you believe in another principle, that of non-violence, and what's an invasion in a thousand incarnations? Theoretically it may be a rather admirable point of view.

But practically, and now, there's a catch in that kind of reasoning. Under the British, India already has had a taste of peace and freedom. More is sure to come. Under Japan there would be neither. Gandhi believes he could do business with the Japanese war gong, that appeasement would bring peace. And there Gandhi is terribly wrong.

There would be no non-violence when the Japanese hordes marched in, because human nature is stronger than idealistic teaching, and when the Hindus saw what the Japanese would do to their daughters, they would fight guns and sabres with their naked hands and carnage of the most violent sort would ensue.

The British have their faults, but they have learned many things, most of them the hard way. They know what it would mean to let Japan into India. They will do everything they can to prevent that. If only the Indian people can learn while there is yet time!

MODEL T

WITH all the talk in recent years about new car models, a lot of the old have stayed on the road. The old Ford Model T, long the ruler of the roads, has not been made since May, 1927; but 178,000 of this American favorite are said to be still hiccuping along the highways.

They had this great merit; a jack-knife and a piece of string, wielded by a resourceful motorist, would solve most of their ailments. Worse cars have been made since, and not lasted so long. With

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

STATE SECRETARY CORDELL HULL's recent world-wide broadcast apropos the war and the kind of peace he hopes for, as a sequel to it, appears to have made a highly favorable impression of international proportions—though of course not including the Axis powers.

Comment from countries in arms against the totalitarianism is a naturally greeted it immediately as a masterpiece. Folk in the areas that the Germans, Japanese and Italians have overrun are quoted similarly in so far as they're able to express themselves. Dispatches from neutral sources also generally expressed approval of the American cabinet chief's utterances.

A few guesses are hazarded to the effect that the talk can't have been without its appeal also to a good many Italians, who are well known to be unenthusiastic over Duce Mussolini's alignment with Fuehrer Hitler.

An occasional voice suggests also that the speech may have made a few converts among enlightened Germans, assuming a sprinkling of them to be left in the Fatherland, where there once was quite a liberal element of yore. Nobody is very hopeful concerning the Japs, however. It's the pretty solid consensus that their militarists will have to be completely extinguished to quiet them. Still, that wouldn't be such a chore, with the Germans disposed of.

Secretary Hull's address was no surprise to anyone at all familiar with his long career in congress and at the head of the state department.

An Internationalist

In the best sense, Hull always has been an ideal internationalist. This is not to say that he has been anything but a true blue American. His aim, though, has been the establishment of the friendliest sort of relations between and among the whole world's peoples. Creation of them, by means of his widely advertised "reciprocal treaties," was the nub of the policy he had in mind as chief of President Roosevelt's foreign affairs office. He made a good start at it, too—and then along came overseas totalitarianism, culminating in the war, knocking his program kiting.

Nevertheless, Cordell's trying to get back to it, as a post-war development. It is an economic proposition mainly. The secretary plans a world court and an international policing system to enforce its mandates and suppress a possibly occasional outbreak of global outlawry, like the present one, but his essential notion is to make mundane life so pleasant and all-around profitable that nobody will want to do any fighting—just as you don't fight with your next door neighbor—and, if anybody does start a fight, he is a criminal and the whole neighborhood squelches him in short order.

There is just one flaw in this program. Secretary Hull might be able to put it across. He has remarkable ability and boundless enthusiasm. He'd toiled tirelessly for his objec-

WASHINGTON—Diplomatic circles are buzzing over the letter which Gen. de Gaulle, commander of the Free French, has written to the British and American Government severely criticizing the manner in which the war is being run.

Gen. de Gaulle used very pointed and picturesque language. He compared the war to a drum and said: "No one man is beating the drum, but a host of beetles are bouncing up and down, and think they are beating it."

Some of Gen de Gaulle's critics attribute his letter to the fact that he is not on particularly good terms with Churchill. Others point out that de Gaulle is peeved because the Free French were treated rather badly in Syria, given only cast-off equipment, and only sixty aged airplanes, though they bore the brunt of the fighting.

However, others believe there may be some justice to Gen. de Gaulle's criticism and that the allied effort could have more unity both as to battle fronts and command.

HE DISCOVERED FDR

If anyone persons can claim credit for discovering Franklin D. Roosevelt it is Herbert Bayard Swope, former executive editor of the New York World, and Frank Cobb, the late editor-in-chief of the World.

The discovery came in 1912 just after Woodrow Wilson was elected and when Swope, then a political correspondent, was travelling with him in New York State. Wilson was so completely at odds with most of the Democratic Party in New York that at the Onondaga Hotel in Syracuse, he refused to shake hands with Charley Murphy, then boss of Tammany.

But Wilson asked Swope to look over the field of New York Democrats and pick a progressive for appointment to his administration.

Swope, at first was baffled, consulted Frank Cobb. Cobb also had a hard time finding a progressive Democrat. At that time there was almost no Democrats in up-state New York, and all of them in New York City belonged to Tammany.

Finally Cobb said: "There's a young fellow named Roosevelt from Dutchess. He's worth looking into."

Swope looked into him: delved into his record in beating Blue-Eyed Billy Sheehan of the Ryan traction interests; took his name to Woodrow Wilson.

"All right," said Wilson, "we'll make him Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Roosevelt seems to like the Navy."

How Weather Changes Affect Life and Health rates, the father of medicine, left a work on "Air, Waters and Places."

All this lore was neglected by the modern physician after he became intellectually proud with his knowledge of bacteriology and body chemistry. It bids fair to have a renaissance with the patient observations and writings of two outstanding American scholars, Dr. William F. Petersen, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, and Dr. Clarence A. Mills, Professor of Experimental Medicine at the University of Cincinnati.

Of Interest in America

North America should be particularly interested in weather. Except for the great Asiatic land mass, America has more weather than any place else on earth. Not only is the annual variation in temperature over most of its surface between 20 degrees below zero on some winter days to 110 or more degrees above zero during some summer days, but the number of storms and storm tracks brought about at the interfaces of polar air masses and tropical air masses make sudden changes in temperature, humidity and barometric pressure frequent experiences.

Weather changes create so many effects on human bodily status that they are hard to classify. Hot weather reduces blood pressure and cold spells raise it. Dr. Petersen, in a recent article, tells an interesting story of a young woman with a very changeable or labile vasomotor system who regularly had fainting attacks in the wake of cold storms.

The fainting did not occur with the cold period, but afterwards when the warm or hot reaction came on; then her blood pressure became so low that any unusual exertion would bring on a fainting spell. In an equable climate she would have become comfortable, but even in her normal environment the administration of epinephrine, which raised blood pressure, controlled the attacks.

The formula for the general body reaction to sudden cold is "A. R. S." (anoxia, reduction, sugar increase). Cold closes the superficial blood vessels, raising blood pressure and it rearranges the endocrine secretions, causing a feeling of stimulation and actually affecting sugar metabolism.

Reaction to Heat

The reaction to heat is "C.O.V." (catabolism, oxidation, vasodilatation). The superficial blood vessels dilate, the blood increases in acidity, the basal metabolism is increased, the potassium-calcium ratio is diminished, dehydration occurs with a consequent feeling of let-downness and fatigue.

These are the temporary reactions to sharp changes. After a hot or cold spell is established, the body adjusts itself and discomfort disappears.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. T.: Please let me know what causes one's toenails to fall off.

Answer: Probably ringworm infection.

J. P. G.:—Is there a cure or remedy that will relieve the spells of bronchial asthma? Is there a difference between bronchial asthma and chronic bronchitis?

Answer: Bronchial asthma is usually due to sensitivity (allergy) to plant pollens, sometimes to animals—especially rabbits and cats and horses—or to certain foods or house dust. If you can find out what you are sensitive to and eliminate it, your asthma will be improved. Sometimes the asthma is due to chronic infection from sinus disease. Chronic bronchitis often produces wheezing like asthmatic wheezing, but the two conditions are not essentially alike.

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

SYNOPSIS

BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband.

MARK, a newspaperman-turned-author, dies in South Wintbridge, the small town in which they had taken up residence. Because they and the townspeople had practically nothing in common, there has been only one person sympathetic with her. He is DR. TONY BRADSHAW, young physician of the town.

MRS. ADDIE BRADSHAW, Tony's aunt, keeps house for him, and takes care of his office.

YESTERDAY: Miss Addie relates to Tony how Tom Kilran, operator of the big mill in town, came into his wealth.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE STACCATO echo of a back-firing truck awakened Barbara Wister with an abruptness so startling that it was as if she had no mind, no memory, no power to think. She was awake, that was all. Her body, rested by the sedative, was deliciously light under the covers, the pillow incredibly soft beneath her head. Before her mind cleared into consciousness, something told her she wanted to prolong that moment forever, and fast upon the heels of that awareness was the knowledge of the struggle that lay ahead of her.

Then, because she was not quite awake, something else brought her bold upright and blindly reaching for her robe. Mark, Mark. She must go to Mark.

Then she remembered that Mark was dead. Mark's funeral was over. One job was done. Another was beginning. Today.

She was sharply awake then, already feeling the urgent hand of Time at her shoulder, hearing its voice telling her that she had no months, nor weeks, nor yet days to plan, to hope for help. What was to be done was to be done solely by her.

For perhaps the only time in her life, Barbara Wister turned away from the thing she knew she had to do. A feeling of helplessness and loneliness and longing for the thing she'd never had, someone close and loving, welled up in her. Slow tears trickled down her cheeks. These were different tears from those she had wept for Mark. These were for the mother she couldn't remember, for herself because there was no one anywhere that she knew to whom she could go, as Sonny could go to her, and know because someone loved her that all would be well. It was aching, desolate loneliness.

There were the men friends of their old life in New York, Mark's associates. There wasn't another woman, no friend from the past or present to whom she could say, "What am I to do? How can I make a living for Sonny and myself?"

Her eyes drifted to the table beside her bed and she saw the soup bowl that Tony Bradshaw had brought her and, as if the sight had been strengthening, she sniffed, dried her tears and got up to dress.

When she was dressed she saw that it wasn't quite seven, as yet too early to awaken her sleeping child. She went in and looked at him, sitting beside his small white bed, seeing him through the years that were coming.

His babyhood was nearly over. School was ahead of him. All sorts of things darted into her mind, funny little pictures. Sonny wanting a baseball glove. Sonny losing his first teeth, needing to have the new ones straightened. Sonny faced with the inevitable illnesses of childhood, the natural wants of adolescence, clothes, pocket money. High school, preparation for a good life.

She knelt beside his bed and, burying her face in her hands, she prayed that strength and light should come to her, and all the time she thought, "What becomes of a woman and her child when she cannot provide for him?"

Tucking the blanket under his chin, she thought, "If I were alone, I could go back to the city and find work, but I can't take him away from here. I KNOW its best for him to be here."

She saw herself in the mirror in the door. She had put on the black dress she'd worn the night before, but now, refreshed by the first good sleep she'd had in many days, even the dreariness of mourning black could not dwarf her look of vitality.

She prayed that strength and light would come to her.

"I could marry again," she said half aloud. "I could take care of Sonny that way."

Then she saw herself shudder in the mirror. A woman should not marry for any reason but love. She had married for loneliness and it had been a good enough marriage. "But not what it could have been," a small voice said.

Things that she had put away from her when she became Mark's wife pushed themselves into the foreground of her mind, the things she had dreamed of in her romantic and brief girlhood, things that a woman who was still young knew might yet be for her.

But Barbara Wister knew they were not to be for her unless she went out into the world and looked for them. Perhaps she might have, had it not been for Sonny. But Sonny's life and future were her whole world now and she wanted no lonely cities, no lack of ties for him. Fiercely she wanted him to stay right where he was and grow up to be a man like Tony Bradshaw.

She found herself saying it, "I want him to be like Tony." When she went into the living room, it was as if his presence was still there, giving her courage, strength, and she went to the desk and looked at the column of figures she had added up the night before. Grocer's bill, the appalling total of items from the drug store, the money she owed the garage. Not big bills to a woman who knew that she would have a little money every week.

Barbara thumbed them hurriedly. There was one from the Bon Ton store for the chintz she'd bought to curtain the front bedroom. She wouldn't need that now. The one thing she needed—and there it was again—was work. Work for women in South Wintbridge was scarce. Something in an office, something in a store was all she could hope for, unless she could find some means of making work for herself.

She couldn't sew. She couldn't do any of the wonderful things self-reliant women were supposed to be able to do. But she could look in the morning newspaper which was on her porch. She didn't ever remember seeing advertisements headed "Help Wanted, Female," but, she hoped, bending to pick up the paper, that was because she hadn't needed to look for them before.

She turned the pages with nervous haste and ran her eyes down the single column. There was nothing to be hoped for there. No female help was needed in South Wintbridge. There were a few items headed "Business Opportunities," and "Radio Repair," and "Houses for Sale." Then she saw one small item under the heading, "Rooms." It seemed to her then that a feeble ray of sunshine broke from the overcast sky of her mind.

That big, unused front room! She could rent that for something. It wouldn't be much. But she had nothing. It would be a beginning.

When the baker's cart stopped before her door she bought some little sugared cakes that Sonny liked, and she did it the way a woman buys an extravagant hat because she feels the future will be brighter.

Mr. Stannard wrapped the cakes, putting in an extra cookie or two, and said, "The Kilran ladies came home last night."

Barbara counted out her coins. "That's nice," she said. "Where do they live?"

Mr. Stannard's mouth dropped to display his lower bridge. "You bin around here this long, Mrs. Wister, and you don't know the mansion?"

"Oh, that," Barbara said. "The big house on the hill with the copper roof? Sometimes I can see it catching the sunlight."

She stood on the porch looking down east and then up to the west. She said, "It makes a perfect triangle. The village makes one point, the mansion another, and my house the peak."

"A triangle, eh?" Mr. Stannard repeated, giving her an odd look. "Guess I ain't got much time to think of them funny ideas myself."

"It doesn't mean anything," Barbara said, pocketing her change. It was such a small thing, not worth mentioning. The design had just popped into her mind one night—the towering mansion on her left, Tony's house in the village on her right, and herself, or her house, in the middle.

Mr. Stannard climbed back into his cart and went off muttering, "A triangle? Now, who'd of thought of that? Must be like the missus says. She must be kinda queer."

It was a long time before the symbol of that triangle was to mean anything to her.

UNREAL INDIA

IN WHAT he himself considers the long run, Gandhi may be right. There are certain spiritual values in turning the other cheek. India does not look at life and time as occidental peoples do. There is a famous Buddhist legend, related by Lafcadio Hearn, of the man who, in a dream, found himself climbing a high mountain and making hard work of it. He found that the mountain was made of a huge pile of skulls, hundreds and thousands of them. He learned, before he woke, that the skulls were all his own, that he had lived through all those incarnations.

The Mahatma faces life with this sort of conditioning. You work for a principle, such as freedom for your people, and you believe in another principle, that of non-violence, and what's an invasion in a thousand incarnations? Theoretically it may be a rather admirable point of view.

But practically, and now, there's a catch in that kind of reasoning. Under the British, India already has had a taste of peace and freedom. More is sure to come. Under Japan there would be neither. Gandhi believes he could do business with the Japanese war gong, that appeasement would bring peace. And there Gandhi is terribly wrong.

There would be no non-violence when the Japanese hordes marched in, because human nature is stronger than idealistic teaching, and when the Hindus saw what the Japanese would do to their daughters, they would fight guns and sabres with their naked hands and carnage of the most violent sort would ensue.

The British have their faults, but they have learned many things, most of them the hard way. They know what it would mean to let Japan into India. They will do everything they can to prevent that. If only the Indian people can learn while there is yet time!

They had this great merit; a jack-knife and a piece of string, wielded by a resourceful motorist, would solve most of their ailments. Worse cars have been made since, and not lasted so long. With

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

STATE SECRETARY CORDELL HULL'S recent world-wide broadcast apropos the war and the kind of peace he hopes for, as a sequel to it, appears to have made a highly favorable impression of international proportions—though of course not including the Axis powers.

Comment from countries in arms against the totalitarian nations naturally greeted it immediately as a masterpiece. Folk in the areas that the Germans, Japanese and Italians have overrun are quoted similarly in so far as they're able to express themselves. Dispatches from neutral sources also generally expressed approval of the American cabinet chief's utterances.

A few guesses are hazarded to the effect that the talk can't have been without its appeal also to a good many Italians, who are well known to be unenthusiastic over Duce Mussolini's alignment with Fuehrer Hitler.

An occasional voice suggests also that the speech may have made a few converts among enlightened Germans, assuming a sprinkling of them to be left in the Fatherland, where there once was quite a liberal element of yore. Nobody is very hopeful concerning the Japs, however. It's the pretty solid consensus that their militarists will have to be completely extinguished to quiet them. Still, that wouldn't be such a chore, with the Germans disposed of.

Secretary Hull's address was no surprise to anyone at all familiar with his long career in congress and at the head of the state department.

An Internationalist
In the best sense, Hull always has been an ideal internationalist. This is not to say that he has been anything but a true blue American. His aim, though, has been the establishment of the friendliest sort of relations between and among the whole world's peoples. Creation of them, by means of his widely advertised "reciprocal treaties," was the nub of the policy he had in mind as chief of President Roosevelt's foreign affairs office. He made a good start at it, too—and then along came overseas totalitarianism, culminating in the war, knocking his program kiting.

Nevertheless, Cordell's trying to get back to it, as a post-war development.

It is an economic proposition mainly. The secretary plans a world court and an international policing system to enforce its mandates and suppress a possibly occasional outbreak of global outlawry, like the present one, but his essential notion is to make mundane life as pleasant and all-around profitable that nobody will want to do any fighting—just as you don't fight with your next door neighbor—and, if anybody does start a fight, he is a criminal and the whole neighborhood squelches him in short order.

There is just one flaw in this program.

Secretary Hull might be able to put it across. He has remarkable ability and boundless enthusiasm. He'd told tirelessly for his objective in congress and went right ahead with his work in the cabinet, but his difficulty was that he didn't get into the cabinet quite soon enough; the world-wide explosion popped before he could get fairly started on realization of his scheme.

A New Start
Now he'll have to begin again when this war is over.

Hull has a lot of experience. He will know how to go about it. If he made any previous mistakes, he will understand how to correct them. He can point morals to burn. Unfortunately he is 71 years old.

Will Hull survive this war if it is a long one? And, even if he does, will he continue to have the stamina to reorganize the world on the basis he argues for?

If not, will there be anybody to succeed him adequately? That is the hader of wars, as they follow one another.

A country gets into a war. Its statesmen learn a great deal about how to prevent them from ever getting into another one. But they pass from the scene before the next one eventuates.

Take 1962!
Who'll have any personal recollection of this year?

There will be huge improvements in armaments and things, but how about improvements in international human nature? This is the meanest war we've had yet, isn't it? But we're going to have no more, what?

Subsequent Hitlers and Mussolinis and Hirohitos will be internationally pinched and chuckled in the housegrow before they get started, hey?

Well, will there be any Cordell Hull to attend to it?

Believe me, I don't know!

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

SYNOPSIS

BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, which her husband.

MARK, a newspaperman-turned-author, dies in South Wintbridge, the small town in which they had taken up residence. Because they and the townspeople had practically nothing in common, there has been only one person sympathetic with her. He is Dr. TONY BRADSHAW, young physician of the town.

MISS ADDIE BRADSHAW, Tony's aunt, keeps house for him, and takes care of his office.

YESTERDAY: Miss Addie relates to Tony how Tom Kilcran, operator of the big mill in town, came into his wealth.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE STACCATO echo of a back-firing truck awakened Barbara Wister with an abruptness so startling that it was as if she had no mind, no memory, no power to think. She was awake, that was all. Her body, rested by the sedative, was deliciously light under the covers, the pillow incredibly soft beneath her head. Before her mind cleared into consciousness, something told her she wanted to prolong that moment forever, and fast upon the heels of that awareness was the knowledge of the struggle that lay ahead of her.

Then, because she was not quite awake, something else brought her bold upright and blindly reaching for her robe. Mark. Mark. She must go to Mark.

Then she remembered that Mark was dead. Mark's funeral was over. One job was done. Another was beginning. Today.

She was sharply awake then, already feeling the urgent hand of Time at her shoulder, hearing his voice telling her that she had no months, nor weeks, nor yet days to plan, to hope for help. What was to be done was to be done solely by her.

For perhaps the only time in her life, Barbara Wister turned away from the thing she knew she had to do. A feeling of helplessness and loneliness and longing for the thing she'd never had, someone close and loving, welled up in her. Slow tears trickled down her cheeks. These were different tears from those she had wept for Mark. These were for the mother she couldn't remember, for herself because there was no one anywhere that she knew to whom she could go, as Sonny could go to her, and know because someone loved her that all would be well. It wasaching, desolate loneliness.

There were the men friends of their old life in New York, Mark's associates. There wasn't another woman, no friend from the past or present to whom she could say, "What am I to do? How can I make a living for Sonny and myself?"

Her eyes drifted to the table beside her bed and she saw the soup bowl that Tony Bradshaw had brought her and, as if the sight had been strengthening, she sniffed, dried her tears and, got up to dress.

When she was dressed she saw that it wasn't quite seven, as yet too early to waken her sleeping child. She went in and looked at him, sitting beside his small white bed, seeing him through the years that were coming.

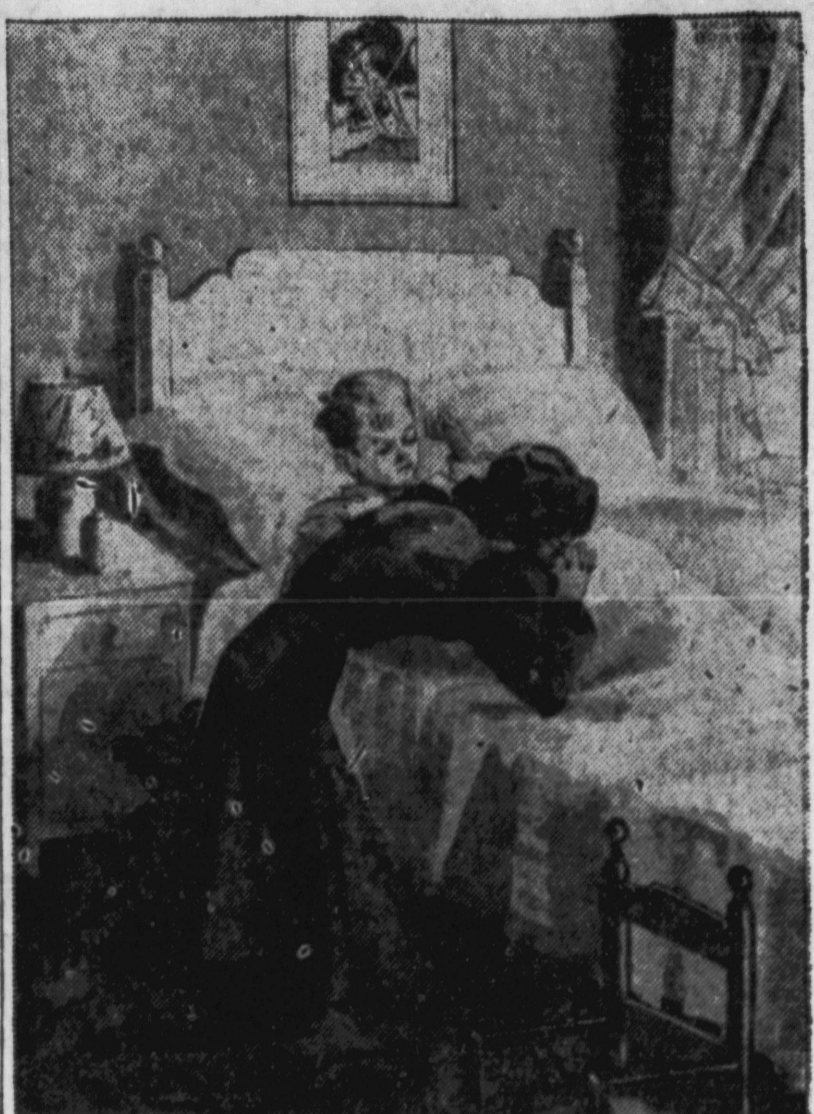

His babyhood was nearly over. School was ahead of him. All sorts of things darted into her mind, funny little pictures. Sonny wanting a baseball glove. Sonny losing his first teeth, needing to have the new ones straightened. Sonny faced with the inevitable illnesses of childhood, the natural wants of adolescence, clothes, pocket money.

High school, preparation for a good life.

She knelt beside his bed and, burying her face in her hands, she prayed that strength and light would come to her, and all the time she thought, "What becomes of a woman and her child when she cannot provide for him?"

Tucking the blanket under his chin, she thought, "If I were alone, I could go back to the city and find work, but I can't take him away from here. I KNOW his best for him to be here."

She saw herself in the mirror in the door. She had put on the black dress she'd worn the night before, but now, refreshed by the first good sleep she'd had in many days, even the dreariness of mourning black could not dwarf her look of vitality.

She prayed that strength and light would come to her.

"I could marry again," she said half aloud. "I could take care of Sonny that way."

Then she saw herself shudder in the mirror. A woman should not marry for any reason but love. She had married for loneliness and it had been a good enough marriage. "But not what it could have been," a small voice said.

Things that she had put away from her when she became Mark's wife pushed themselves into the foreground of her mind, the things she had dreamed of in her romantic and brief girlhood, things that a woman who was still young knew might yet be for her.

But Barbara Wister knew they were not to be for her unless she went out into the world and looked for them. Perhaps she might have, had it not been for Sonny. But Sonny's life and future were her whole world now and she wanted no lonely cities, no lack of ties for him. Fiercely she wanted him to stay right where he was and grow up to be a man like Tony Bradshaw.

She found herself saying it, "I want him to be like Tony."

When she went into the living room, it was as if his presence was still there, giving her courage, strength, and she went to the desk and looked at the column of figures she had added up the night before.

Grocer's bill, the appalling total of items from the drug store, the money she owed the garage. Not big bills to a woman who knew that she would have a little money every week.

Barbara thumbed them hurriedly. There was one from the Bon Ton store for the child's dress bought to curtain the front bedroom. She wouldn't need that now.

The one thing she needed—and there it was again—was work. Work for women in South Wintbridge was scarce. Something in an office, something in a store was all she could hope for, unless she could find some means of making work for herself.

She couldn't sew. She couldn't do any of the wonderful things self-reliant women were supposed to be able to do. But she could look in the morning newspaper which was on her porch. She didn't ever remember seeing advertisements headed "Help Wanted, Female," but, she hoped, bending to pick up

ASHVILLE

The Methodist church Friendship class, number ten, will hold its annual picnic on the evening of August 14 in Community Park. The members are invited to come with well filled baskets and too, invite your friends to be with us.

Rev. Woodworth, wife and son James are out for a couple weeks vacation visiting among relatives and friends at different points in Ohio. . . . Charles Hollenback and Clarence Foreman, local West Side youngsters, are taking a training course as Herald route carriers and collectors this week under charge of Norma Jean Hoover the operator for some weeks past with no complaints made against her during her reign.

Ashville Regarding the Ashville waterworks and its general care and operation, a most pleasing report was received this week from F. H. Warring, chief engineer of this division of the State Board of Health. A part of his report is given here: "The general appearance of the Ashville waterworks plant is excellent and your operator is to be complimented on the manner in which he has taken care of the plant." The one receiving this fine compliment, is our well known Cecil Scott, Superintendent of waterworks and deputy marshal.

Ashville Lewis Berry, assistant rural mail carrier out of the local office on Route Two, is substituting now and for a time, relieving George Messick while on vacation.

Ashville The Ashville school board, which has to do with the grade schools, was in session yesterday evening at the school building office. In reporting on the meet, Superintendent Higley told us there are two important matters to care for before the Fall term of school gets into session. The one, a janitor is to be employed to care for building and grounds. Must be a licensed fireman or engineer. The other, a teacher is to be employed for grade five. Miss Nelson having returned her contract unsigned. She taught this named grade last school year.

As we remember it, "Old Stephen", a way back there, got stoned clear dead for being a false prophet or something like that. So this modern day "Steve" made a guess that these Ashville voters, both precincts, would get around 300 ballots in the boxes yesterday, but according to figures, counting all the two election boards of East and West precincts, there were but 123 ballots, 44 in West and 79 East. And of these 79, there were 46 Democrats and 33 Republicans; of the 44 in West, there were 31 Democrats and 13 Republicans. So as a modern prophet, this "present day Steve" didn't guess very well either.

Ashville The Harrison township school board in session at Duval Monday evening transacted no business except pay bills and reemploy janitors for both Duval and South Bloomfield. Joint High school board will be in session next Monday evening, the 17th. An athletic coach may then be employed.

Arnold, orphan boy grown up, is listed in this week's newspapers as one of the busiest Hollywood actors with seven roles to his credit during the season just passed. He first appeared on Cavalcade during October last when he portrayed his film role of Daniel Webster in Cavalcade's radio adaptation of "All That Money Can Buy."

Edward Arnold's portrayal will show him as leader of the famous Rough Riders or "horse riflemen," Governor of New York; Vice President, then president of the United States after McKinley's assassination in Buffalo. HOSTESS CLUB ENTERTAINS 100 AIR SOLDIERS

The Hostess club of Ashville entertained 100 soldiers from the Lockbourne Air Base at a picnic supper Tuesday in the Ashville school gymnasium.

The menu included home fried chicken, salad, cottage cheese, fresh vegetables, ice cream and home made cake, and iced tea. The cake and chicken were provided to satisfy the expressed longing of some of the soldiers for those home-cooked foods and the great quantities enabled all to feast to their hearts content.

Planned entertainment included a concert in the Ashville community park, a WPA concert band of Columbus under the direction of Mr. Crawshaw of that city furnishing a program of splendid selections.

The boys danced for about one hour before leaving for the Air Base and an informal lunch was provided by the hostess group under the direction of Miss Helen Bowers, club leader.

Seloto Valley Grange
Seloto Valley grange conducted its meeting Tuesday evening in the grange hall north of Ashville with 45 members present. In the absence of Harry Speakman, worthy master, Walter Berger was in charge of the opening ceremonies and business hour.

No important business was transacted, but the following interesting program was offered: piano solos, 'Chimes' and 'Raindrops,' by Rosemary Fisher; reading, 'Letter to His Girl,' by Jimmy Moore; flute solo, 'Londonderry Air,' by Donna Mae Purcell; reading, 'A Handsome Man than I,' by Jerry Moore and a talk, 'Banking in Ohio,' by E. W. Seeds of Ashville.

The next meeting will be August 25.

ASHVILLE

The Methodist church Friendship class, number ten, will hold its annual picnic on the evening of August 14 in Community Park. The members are invited to come with well filled baskets and too, invite your friends to be with us.

Rev. Woodworth, wife and son James are out for a couple weeks vacation visiting among relatives and friends at different points in Ohio.

Charles Hollenback and Clarence Foreman, local West Side youngsters, are taking a training course as Herald route carriers and collectors this week under charge of Norma Jean Hoover the operator for some weeks past with no complaints made against her during her reign.

Regarding the Ashville waterworks and its general care and operation, a most pleasing report was received this week from F. H. Warring, chief engineer of this division of the State Board of Health. A part of his report is given here: "The general appearance of the Ashville waterworks plant is excellent and your operator is to be complimented on the manner in which he has taken care of the plant." The one receiving this fine compliment, is our well known Cecil Scott, Superintendent of waterworks and deputy marshal.

Ashville—Lewis Berry, assistant rural mail carrier out of the local office on Route Two, is substituting now and for a time, relieving George Messick while on vacation.

Ashville—The Ashville school board, which has to do with the grade schools, was in session yesterday evening at the school building office. In reporting on the meet, Superintendent Higley told us there are two important matters to care for before the Fall term of school gets into session. The one, a janitor is to be employed to care for building and grounds. Must be a licensed fireman or engineer. The other, a teacher is to be employed for grade five. Miss Nelson having returned her contract unassigned. She taught this named grade last school year.

Ashville—As we remember it, "Old Stopped," a way back there, got Stephen clear dead for being a false prophet or something like that. So this modern day "Steve" made a guess that these Ashville voters, both precincts, would get around 300 ballots in the boxes yesterday, and all the two election boards of East and West precincts, there were 123 ballots, 44 in West and 79 East. And of these 79, there were 46 Democrats and 33 Republicans; of the 44 in West, there were 31 Democrats and 13 Republicans. So as a modern prophet, this "present day Steve" didn't guess very well either.

Ashville—The Harrison township school board in session at Duval Monday evening transacted no business except pay bills and reemploy janitors for both Duval and South Bloomfield. Joint High school board will be in session next Monday evening, the 17th. An athletic coach may then be employed.

Ashville—Edward Arnold, orphan boy grown up, is listed in this week's newspapers as one of the busiest Hollywood actors with seven roles to his credit during the season just passed. He first appeared on Cavalcade during October last when he portrayed his film role of Daniel Webster in Cavalcade's radio adaptation of "All That Money Can Buy."

Edward Arnold's portrayal will show him as leader of the famous Rough Riders or "horse riflemen," Governor of New York; Vice President, then president of the United States after McKinley's assassination in Buffalo. Then "The sixth age shifts into the lean and slipper'd pantaloon..." with old war horse Teddy, forced by age to remain at home, receiving the message saying his beloved youngest son, Quentin's plane has crashed behind enemy lines in World War I.

Atlanta—Misses Carolyn Jean and Betty Ann Speakman visited Saturday and Sunday with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Landman of New Holland.

ATLANTA

Robert Maddox of Indianapolis, Indiana and Edwin Maddox of Piqua were weekend guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maddox.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Lamb and daughter Betty were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Speakman and daughters visited Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Keaton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adams and son Robert Lee of Stoutsville, Mrs. Annie Boots of Washington C. H. and Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Bowman of Williamsport were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Skinner and daughter Betty. The dinner honored Mr. Skinner's natal anniversary.

Mrs. Ralph Matthews visited part of last week with friends in Cleveland.

Donald Mickey of Bexley spent last week with his cousins, Joe and Dean Drake.

The annual Art family reunion will be held Sunday August 23 at Gold Cliff Park near Circleville. Guests attending are requested to bring basket dinner and table service.

EDWARD ARNOLD

"Dead End Kid" Edward Arnold, who hoisted himself by his own boot straps from the lower East Side and from Harlem in New York City to highest positions in theatre and film worlds, will make his second appearance on Cavalcade of America Monday evening, August 17, in "Theodore Roosevelt, Man of Action," an original drama.

Arnold, orphan boy grown up, is listed in this week's newspapers as one of the busiest Hollywood actors with seven roles to his credit during the season just passed. He first appeared on Cavalcade during October last when he portrayed his film role of Daniel Webster in Cavalcade's radio adaptation of "All That Money Can Buy."

HULL WITH LANDIS

It's "Anchors Aweigh" on Vox Pop as Carole Landis and Warren Hull sail for Mare Island Navy yard, Vallejo, California, 27 miles northeast of San Francisco, to interview U. S. Navy personnel and shipbuilding workers Monday, August 17, at 8 p. m., over CBS.

Named for a white mare, which swam ashore and ran wild when a raft capsized in mid-channel, the island now ranks as the largest shipbuilding and ship repair yard in the world.

Vox Pop will go on the air from here with a background of rivet guns, groaning cranes and a multitude of ship construction noises producing the tumultuous effect of over 35,000 men—35,000 Americans—united and working night and day for the preservation of their country.

Carole Landis, who is substituting on Vox Pop for the vacationing Parks Johnson, returns as a star radio interviewer, plus her screen triumphs, to San Francisco, scene of her start in show business. Seven years ago, 16 and gorgeous, she arrived by bus in the Golden Gate city with $16.82 in her purse and promptly got a job as singer and hula dancer in a night club.

EVEN a waffle iron becomes a rare—and perhaps irreplaceable—treasure when Uncle Sam needs metal for war. So it's high time to pamper your iron. After using brush with a stiff brush, wipe with a damp cloth, dry with a soft cloth, then slip into an oilskin bag.

You'll be helping yourself and your country by caring for electrical appliances made of scarce metals. Put that extra money into WAR BONDS and STAMPS to help your country meet its War Bond Quota.

Would You Drink—

10 to 50 quarts of milk in a Day—

The vitamin D content of whole milk varies as much as 500% depending upon the season of the year, therefore at one time of the year it would only furnish 10 quarts in a day to supply the necessary amount of Vitamin D that your body requires. But there are times when it would take 50 quarts to furnish this content.

Here's a Tip—
Vitamin D content of Vitamel Bread is always uniform and is certified by the Paediatric Research Foundation.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Neighbors at present indicate that their armies, some of which never were too enthusiastic about the democracies, are getting restless again. They fear that a Russian victory for Hitler will release his armies to plunge into Africa, use Dakar as the jumping off place for an invasion of South America. They have seen what difficulty the British had in stopping a Nazi force which Churchill admitted to be smaller than the United Nations'. They also knew that France is ready to play ball with Hitler in Spain. And they see no obstacle in the path of a Hitler trek across Morocco to Dakar. In fact the diplomatic grapevine already brings word that France is all set to help this trek.

As a result of the danger to Dakar, the Brazilian army is in a quiver. Brazil is the nation, just opposite the bulge of Africa, which would bear the brunt of any attack on South America. But other Latin-American armies also are nervous, are asking for additional arms from the U. S. A.

As a result, there is no chance of Argentina and Chile breaking Axis relations—until the scale of victories tips in the other direction.

NOTE: U. S. Ambassador Jeff Caffery will return to Brazil soon.

JACOBS READY TO START WORK ON LOUIS BOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—The word was making the rounds in sporting circles today that Mike Jacobs has the "green light" from Washington and that Corporal Joe Louis Barrow will forget the rigors of Army training one night late this summer and defend his civilian heavyweight title against Private Billy Conn, also of the U. S. Army.

The fistic, it is reported, will take place in the Polo Grounds "some time during the world's series week."

An understood proviso is that Corporal Joe must forego a purse share which he seeks to defray his income tax debt of $117,000 in favor of the Army Emergency relief fund.

Jacobs hasn't yet made any comment on the projected battle, but it is expected he will make an announcement in a day or two.

CUBS BUY CATCHER

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—The Chicago Cubs announced today the purchase of Paul Gillespie, 22, catcher for the Tulsa team in the Texas league. He will report to Chicago late in the season for a try-out in the event Tulsa fails to qualify for the Texas league play-offs. Gillespie once was signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers who later released him.

Colby Hanover Favored To Win Hambletonian

By Jack Mahon

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 12—

There was plenty of corn on the cob under the grandstands and plenty of "corny" wisecracks mouthed by the Broadway hillbillies who flocked to this normal peaceful country town this afternoon as the citizens prepared to witness the 17th running of the famed Hambletonian stakes.

As usual the stands at Bill Cane's Good Time track began to fill early as the citizens of this and surrounding villages prepared to celebrate the annual Kentucky derby of trotting races.

In the crowd were many of the best known race track habitués of the east for this day is considered an annual holiday by them and the so-called smart remarks they pass about the country fair carnival are horrible to hear.

Despite the home-made and home cooked corn surrounding the "farmer's derby" the race is always of great interest throughout the nation and today's renewal promises to be no exception.

Heading the field of 11 entrants is the favored Colby Hanover, the two year old champion, which will be favored in the wagering at about 3 to 2. This racer, owned by C. W. Phellis of New York and L. W. Gleason of Williamsport, Pa., will be driven by Fred Egan, one of the hard-luck drivers of the race. Egan last drove Spencer Scott home in front in the 1940 running and has narrowly missed winning on many other occasions.

Colby's form last season and three wins in five heats this year won him the support of the trotting railbirds but many other riders and owners can't see why he's been getting so much attention.

Except for Green Diamond, owned by Leo McNamara of Indianapolis and Paxton Hanover, owned by B. C. Mayo of Tarboro, N. C., Colby is not expected to have much opposition. The former won at Old Orchard, Me., recently and the latter was second to Colby in one of the heats for the national stakes at the same track.

The rest of the field consists of William Miller's William E. of Washington; William Strang's the Ambassador from Brooklyn; George L. Hempt's Follow Me, of Camp Hill, Pa.; Thomas Thomas' Scotland Comet of Cleveland; Mabel Hanover, a filly owned by D. J. McConville of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and Gaines Sheddbourne, N. Y.; Pay Up, owned by R. H. Johnston of Charlotte, N. C., who won it last year with Bill Gallon; E. Gerry's Seven Up of Westbury, L. I., and George L. Benham's Cannon Ball, holder of a decision over Colby Hanover last year.

Track officials were expecting a crowd of from 20 to 25,000 to jam the track despite the transportation and tire difficulties.

DAIRY OUTFIT WINS 17-6 TILT

Circleville Boys Drive Out Revenge Victory In Big Tournament Game

Blue Ribbon Dairy softball team of Circleville gained sweet revenge Tuesday night over the Chillicothe Red Cross Shoes by knocking off a 17 to 6 victory in the district softball tournament. The Shoes walloped the Dairy a couple of weeks ago in a practice game, but with the chips down the localites went to town.

Don Valentine gave the Shoes only six hits, while Valentine, Siegwald and Shelton hit home runs.

The Dairy will play the Texaco team Thursday night, Windy Burke, one of south central Ohio's best twirlers, being on the hill for the opposition. Burke tossed a one-hit shutout Tuesday against an Ironton entry.

Knocked out of the box in the third as the Browns took an 8 to 1 lead in a four-run rally, Smith suffered his 18th defeat of the season.

After allowing only two hits in the first three frames, Galehouse did not allow another hit until the ninth when Luke Appling doubled and Joe Kuhel singled for the Sox final run.

National: Reiser, Dodgers .340; Medwick, Dodgers .325; Lombardi, Braves .325.

BIRDIES JUMP BACK INTO LEAD

Columbus Downs St. Paul As Kaws Fall; Mudhens Grab Double Bill

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—The on-again-off-again procedure which seems to be the nature of the 1942 American Association race, appeared much in evidence today as the Columbus Red Birds assumed the league lead by less than one percentage point over Kansas City.

The Birds' step into first place came at the expense of the lowly St. Paul Saints who submitted to an 8-0 drubbing last night, and Louisville's 5-3 victory over the Blues. Columbus' lead is figured at .0061 or less than half a game.

The Toledo Mud Hens, in fifth place, proved that they are still to be reckoned with when they slammed out a double win over the fourth place Minneapolis Millers, 10-0 and 6-5.

Also recording a twin win yesterday were the Milwaukee Brewers who topped Indianapolis, 6-1 and 9-2.

Farm Leaders Map Campaign Of Soil, Water Conservation

LAND PLANNINGS FINANCING ARE AIRED AT MEET

F. K. Blair Represents City And County At Session In Lancaster

NEED FOR ACTION CITED

1,600,000 Acres Ohio's Farm Land Abandoned Because Of Lack Of Care

Organization of a statewide campaign in the interest of agriculture and soil and water conservation was initiated Tuesday night when Agriculture and Conservation committees of district C. of C. councils of Pickaway, Fairfield, Hocking and Perry counties gathered in the Hotel Lancaster.

Circleville and Pickaway county were represented by F. K. Blair, appointed by A. V. Osborn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, as its delegate. Mr. Blair was accompanied to the meeting by Harry J. Briggs, James Swearingen, Russell C. Palm and Cornell Copeland.

The five point program includes land use planning, conservation, vocational agriculture, farm financing and post-war agricultural problems.

Need for soil and water conservation immediately was emphasized by Brooks Burnside, Columbus, agricultural agent of the Chamber of Commerce, who explained that the loss of soil and water was reaching alarming proportions in many parts of the state.

Water Table Drops

The Ohio water table, on which agriculture and a large proportion of Ohio industry and communities depend, is falling at the rate of one foot each year Burnside stated. Corrective devices, whether natural or artificial, must be employed as soon as possible to ward off this menace, he said.

Measures which can be used in correcting the situation, he said, are neither impossible nor necessarily expensive.

Already, 1,600,000 acres of Ohio farm land, or seven percent of the total, once used for cultivated crops, has been abandoned because of soil losses, and an additional 3,650,000 acres have been destroyed for all practical purposes, although not yet abandoned outright, according to the speaker.

Because of the serious consequences involved, Mr. Burnside explained that the district councils had initiated their five-point program which is being implemented by their members through agriculture and conservation committees in every county of the state. These committees will cooperate with and assist the established farm groups and state and national agricultural agencies along the lines of the program.

Timeliness Stressed

Timeliness of the program was stressed by Burnside who pointed to its practical use in the Food-Freedom campaign of the federal government wherein the American farmer has been given the greatest production goal in his history with particular need for meat and dairy products, vegetables and oil-producing products.

In this connection, however, he warned against the threat of allowing farm values to become inflated, recalling the disastrous effects of this procedure in World War I, when the bottom dropped out of land values after the war.

Strictest economy in public expenditures must be practiced if the American form of government and the nation's economy are not to be submerged in a tax black-out, George J. O'Brien, director of district councils, declared at the meeting.

In this connection, O'Brien pointed out that the immediate need was to obtain reductions in federal non-defense expenditures. How to meet war expenses without bankrupting the taxpayer becomes a problem but it can be solved, the speaker asserted, and the place to begin is in non-essential appropriations. The Ohio Chamber has advocated as a start that WPA, CCC and NYA should be abolished immediately.

Tax Blackout

"A threatened tax blackout constitutes a direct challenge to every citizen to maintain the solvency of the nation, the American way of living and its representative government," Mr. O'Brien declared.

"There is a way to forestall this, and it does not add to the burden of the citizen beyond what every American should concede to the nation in the way of patriotic service."

Let the taxpayer put aside his indifference to the activities of tax-spending groups and let him demand efficiency and economy in local, state and national governments, Mr. O'Brien explained, and the burden of producing revenues

CLAYPOOL AGAIN VICTORIOUS IN CONGRESS TILT

Congressman Harold K. (Happy) Claypool, sweeping four of the Eleventh district's five counties, won nomination Tuesday for his fourth term in the national house of representatives. He defeated Robert U. Hastings of Lancaster, who entered the race for the first time. Hastings is serving now as prosecutor in Fairfield county.

Mr. Claypool's district total was 7,334 against 4,661 for the Fairfield countian.

Republicans of the district named Dr. Walter Brehm of Logan as their standard-bearer over Clarence Chute of New Lexington. Dr. Brehm, who is a member of the legislature from Hocking county, received 5,909 votes against 3,650 in sweeping all counties except Perry, Chute's own.

Brehm ran with the blessing of the 11th district Republican organization. In only one county did Hastings defeat Claypool, that being Fairfield where the prosecutor proved his popularity by gathering 2,688 votes against 1,439 for the congressman. The 2,688 vote for Hastings in Fairfield was the largest cast in the district.

The county-by-county vote follows:

Pickaway: Claypool 1,511, Hastings 431; Ross: Claypool 2,299, Hastings 511; Hocking: Claypool 1,033, Hastings 533; Fairfield: Claypool 1,439, Hastings 2,688; Perry: Claypool 1,052; Hastings 498.

Pickaway: Brehm 490, Chute 202; Ross: Brehm 1,512, Chute 735; Hocking: Brehm 1,280, Chute 206; Fairfield: Brehm 1,150, Chute 494; Perry: Brehm 1,477, Chute 2,013.

District committee jobs went to Walter Gordon of Lancaster and Mrs. Hulse Hayes of Circleville on the Democratic ticket and Tom A. Renick and Mrs. Loy Hoyt of Chillicothe on the Republican ticket.

for government will be materially lightened.

"How many citizens—with the exception of public officials, can say that they give one hour a week to serious consideration of civic affairs of their own local community?" he asked. "Local reforms do not come from Washington or Columbus but should originate at home."

The biggest need for reform, he said, is in local tax programs. He maintained that with the country committed to huge war expenditures, the only way for the taxpayers to offset rising costs of national government is to operate local county budgets at an efficient economical minimum.

"Every American believes in our emergency program," he said. "The early philosophy that nothing will happen to us because we are 3,000 miles from flaming war, is antiquated and no longer endures."

"The costs of the program will be a terrific burden upon the individual citizen, entailing many sacrifices, but if liberty is to be preserved, each American must be prepared to give hours of unselfish service to his government."

COUNTY THROWS VOTES BEHIND JOE FERGUSON

State Auditor Scores Count Of 701 To 600 Over Clarence Knisley

McSWEENEY IS THIRD

Republicans Give Excellent Complimentary Vote To John Bricker

The county threw its support to State Auditor Joe T. Ferguson in his campaign for governor by giving him 701 votes against 600 for Clarence Knisley of Bainbridge, former state treasurer. Running third in the list in Pickaway county was John McSweeney of Wooster, former congressman, who received 426 ballots. The two Columbus aspirants, Walter Heer, Franklin county boss, and Frank A. Dye, attorney, fared not so well in this district, the former gathering a total of 132 votes and the latter only 49, a shade more than one for each precinct.

Complimentary Vote

Republicans gave Governor John W. Bricker a nice complimentary that fell just short of 900 ballots.

George Nye of Waverly, former common pleas court judge, was given 892 votes here against 676 for Ralph Winegardner of Washington C. H., his foe for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor. The Republican incumbent, Paul M. Herbert, received about 750.

Harry V. Armstrong led Robert S. Cox and John Charles Fowler for nomination for Democratic state treasurer with 708 votes against 626 and 130, respectively, while Herbert Duffy, former attorney general, paced Joseph Allen, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Groom, and William Hart for the attorney general nomination. The county gave Duffy 927, Allen 452 and Hart 191.

State Treasurer Don Ebright, unopposed incumbent, and Attorney General Tom Herbert, also in office and unopposed, were given excellent votes by the county G.O.P.

For State senate Earl Reed of Walnut township, who teaches in Columbus schools, received a large vote for the Democratic nomination, Reed gathering a total of 1,065 to top the ticket for the senate nomination. Second to him was the 347 given to George Clark, Reynoldsburg. Other state senate ballots included 316 for Thomas F. O'Shaughnessy; 262 for Francis Thompson; 243 for Franklin H. Holmes and 164 for James F. Coady. On the Republican side, the incumbent Everett Addison garnered 421 votes against 401 for Roscoe R. Walcutt and 22 for S. G. Harvey.

Among unopposed state candidates and their votes in Pickaway county were John E. Sweeney, secretary of state, 1,051; Stephen Young, congressman-at-large, 1,427 votes; George Bender, G.O.P. congressman-at-large, 640.

JAMES PONTIUS IN MISHAP

James Pontius, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pontius of east of Ashville, was unhurt in an accident in the West Main street bridge over the Scioto river early Monday instead of his father, as previously reported. The younger Pontius was driving his father's automobile.

BRIEF NOTES ON PRIMARY VOTE

First precinct to report to the board of elections was First Ward, B, where David S. Dunlap is presiding judge. The report reached the board office before 7:30 p. m., less than one hour after polls were closed. First B votes at the county engineer's office in the courthouse.

Charles Kirkpatrick, Circleville treasurer and incidentally the only Republican in Circleville's official family, was handed a Democratic ballot and was marked on the Democratic ledger in his precinct, First Ward A, before the error was discovered and corrected.

Ed Goeller, who makes his home at the New American Hotel, cast his first ballot in Circleville in 45 years Tuesday. He has been living in Detroit. Mr. Goeller believes that Grover Cleveland was running for president when he voted here the last time.

Scarcity of rural district votes was apparent from the first report, Pickaway county's farmers being too busy producing Food for Freedom to spend much time travelling to and from the polls. This fact is believed to have had much to do with results in several races.

Returns moved into the election board office at such a speed that reporters ceased sending precinct by precinct reports to The Daily Herald office and started sending accumulative totals instead. The first 12 precincts were reported individually, but after that time they came 10 at a time until they were cleaned up. There are 40 precincts in Pickaway county, 11 in Circleville and 29 in the rural areas.

Orin Dreisbach of Kingston pike signed his name so often to official election papers Tuesday that he almost developed writer's cramp. His name is one of the most frequently misspelled names in the district, his first name coming up Orrin, Orren, Oren and properly as Orin. The Dreisbach comes as Dreisbach, Dresback, Dreisback. Mr. Dreisbach is chairman of the county election board, serving for the first time in that capacity. Russell Inler, who has been working for the last six weeks on the election, is serving also as clerk for the first time.

Don't kid yourself that local residents are not acquainted with who is running for what office and on what ticket. There were few calls received Tuesday night in The Herald office in which inquirers asked general questions. Nearly all wished to know who was nominated for auditor, representative and commissioner. Pickaway counties usually take their politics seriously, and, despite the light vote, nearly every one knew the candidates and the posts they were seeking.

Darby North was the last precinct to get its report to the election board, all others being cleared away quite a while before the officials from the extreme northwestern point of the county came through with their figures. The precinct workers completed their tasks at 9 p. m. and had only 99 votes, but election board officials reported that Charles McKinley, presiding judge, went home with the reports and went to bed. Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer brought the poll books to the board office and the evening's report which could have been completed at 10:30 p. m., was finished a few minutes before 1 a. m.

Farm Leaders Map Campaign Of Soil, Water Conservation

LAND PLANNINGS FINANCING ARE AIRED AT MEET

F. K. Blair Represents City And County At Session In Lancaster

NEED FOR ACTION CITED

1,600,000 Acres Ohio's Farm Land Abandoned Because Of Lack Of Care

Organization of a statewide campaign in the interest of agriculture and soil and water conservation was initiated Tuesday night when Agriculture and Conservation committees of district C. of C. councils of Pickaway, Fairfield, Hocking and Perry counties gathered in the Hotel Lancaster.

Circleville and Pickaway county were represented by F. K. Blair, appointed by A. V. Osborn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, as its delegate. Mr. Blair was accompanied to the meeting by Harry J. Briggs, James Swearingen, Russell C. Palm and Cornell Copeland.

The five-point program includes land use planning, conservation, vocational agriculture, farm financing and post-war agricultural problems.

Need for soil and water conservation immediately was emphasized by Brooks Burnside, Columbus, agricultural agent of the Chamber of Commerce, who explained that the loss of soil and water was reaching alarming proportions in many parts of the state.

Water Table Drops

The Ohio water table, on which agriculture and a large proportion of Ohio industry and communities depend, is falling at the rate of one foot each year Burnside stated. Corrective devices, whether natural or artificial, must be employed as soon as possible to ward off this menace, he said.

Measures which can be used in correcting the situation, he said, are neither impossible nor necessarily expensive.

Already, 1,600,000 acres of Ohio farm land, or seven percent of the total, once used for cultivated crops, has been abandoned because of soil losses, and an additional 3,650,000 acres have been destroyed for all practical purposes, although not yet abandoned outright according to the speaker.

Because of the serious consequences involved, Mr. Burnside explained that the district councils had initiated their five-point program which is being implemented by their members through agriculture and conservation committees in every county of the state. These committees will co-operate with and assist the established farm groups and state and national agricultural agencies along the lines of the program.

Timeliness Stressed

Timeliness of the program was stressed by Burnside who pointed to its practical use in the Food-Freedom campaign of the federal government wherein the American farmer has been given the greatest production goal in his history with particular need for meat and dairy products, vegetables and oil-producing products. In this connection, however, he warned against the threat of allowing farm values to become inflated, recalling the disastrous effects of this procedure in World War I, when the bottom dropped out of land values after the war. Strictest economy in public expenditures must be practiced if the American form of government and the nation's economy are not to be submerged in a tax backlash. George J. O'Brien, director of district councils, declared at the meeting.

In this connection, O'Brien pointed out that the immediate need was to obtain reductions in federal non-defense expenditures. How to meet war expenses without bankrupting the taxpayer becomes a problem but it can be solved, the speaker asserted, and the place to begin is in non-essential appropriations. The Ohio Chamber has advocated as a start that WPA, CCC and NYA should be abolished immediately.

Tax Backlog

"A threatened tax backlash constitutes a direct challenge to every citizen to maintain the solvency of the nation, the American way of living and its representative government," Mr. O'Brien declared.

"There is a way to forestall this, and it does not add to the burden of the citizen beyond what every American should concede to the nation in the way of patriotic service."

Let the taxpayer put aside his indifference to the activities of tax-spending groups and let him demand efficiency and economy in local, state and national governments, Mr. O'Brien explained, and the burden of producing revenues

Congressman Harold K. (Happy) Claypool, sweeping four of the Eleventh district's five counties, won nomination Tuesday for his fourth term in the national house of representatives. He defeated Robert U. Hastings of Lancaster, who entered the race for the first time. Hastings is serving now as prosecutor in Fairfield county.

Mr. Claypool's district total was 7,334 against 4,661 for the Fairfield county.

Republicans of the district named Dr. Walter Brehm of Logan as their standard-bearer over Clarence Chute of New Lexington. Dr. Brehm, who is a member of the legislature from Hocking county, received 5,909 votes against 3,650 in sweeping all counties except Perry, Chute's own.

Brehm ran with the blessing of the 11th district Republican organization.

In only one county did Hastings defeat Claypool, that being Fairfield where the prosecutor proved his popularity by gathering 2,688 votes against 1,439 for the congressman. The 2,688 vote for Hastings in Fairfield was the largest cast in the district.

The county-by-county vote follows: Pickaway: Claypool 1,511, Hastings 431; Ross: Claypool 2,299, Hastings 511; Hocking: Claypool 1,033, Hastings 533; Fairfield: Claypool 1,439, Hastings 2,688; Perry: Claypool 1,052; Hastings 498.

Pickaway: Brehm 490, Chute 202; Ross: Brehm 1,512, Chute 735; Hocking: Brehm 1,280, Chute 206; Fairfield: Brehm 1,150, Chute 494; Perry: Brehm 1,477, Chute 2,013.

District committee jobs went to Walter Gordon of Lancaster and Mrs. Hulise Hayes of Circleville on the Democratic ticket and Tom A. Renick and Mrs. Loy Hoyt of Chillicothe on the Republican ticket.

for government will be materially lightened.

"How many citizens—with the exception of public officials, can say that they give one hour a week to serious consideration of civic affairs of their own local community?" he asked. "Local reforms do not come from Washington or Columbus but should originate at home."

The biggest need for reform, he said, is in local tax programs. He maintained that with the country committed to huge war expenditures, the only way for the taxpayers to offset rising costs of national government is to operate local county budgets at an efficient economical minimum.

"Every American believes in our emergency program," he said. "The early philosophy that nothing will happen to us because we are 3,000 miles from flaming war, is antiquated and no longer endures."

"The costs of the program will be a terrific burden upon the individual citizen, entailing many sacrifices, but if liberty is to be preserved, each American must be prepared to give hours of unselfish service to his government."

COUNTY THROWS VOTES BEHIND JOE FERGUSON

State Auditor Scores Count Of 701 To 600 Over Clarence Knisley

McSWEENEY IS THIRD

Republicans Give Excellent Complimentary Vote To John Bricker

The county threw its support to State Auditor Joe T. Ferguson in his campaign for governor by giving him 701 votes against 600 for Clarence Knisley of Bainbridge, former state treasurer. Running third in the list in Pickaway county was John McSweeney of Wooster, former congressman, who received 426 ballots. The two Columbus aspirants, Walter Heer, Franklin county boss, and Frank A. Dye, attorney, fared not so well in this district, the former gathering a total of 132 votes and the latter only 49, a shade more than one for each precinct.

Complimentary Vote

Republicans gave Governor John W. Bricker a nice complimentary that fell just short of 900 ballots.

George Nye of Waverly, former common pleas court judge, was given 892 votes here against 676 for Ralph Winegardner of Washington C. H., his foe for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-governor. The Republican incumbent, Paul M. Herbert, received about 750.

Harry V. Armstrong led Robert S. Cox and John Charles Fowler for nomination for Democratic state treasurer with 708 votes against 626 and 130, respectively, while Herbert Duffy, former attorney general, paced Joseph Allen, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Groom, and William Hart for the attorney general nomination. The county gave Duffy 927, Allen 452 and Hart 191.

State Treasurer Don Ebricht, unopposed incumbent, and Attorney General Tom Herbert, also in office and unopposed, were given excellent votes by the county G.O.P.

For State senate Earl Reed of Walnut township, who teaches in Columbus schools, received a large vote for the Democratic nomination, Reed gathering a total of 1,065 to top the ticket for the senate nomination. Second to him was the 347 given to George Clark, Reynoldsburg. Other state senate ballots included 316 for Thomas F. O'Shaughnessy; 262 for Francis Thompson; 243 for Franklin H. Holmes and 164 for James F. Coady. On the Republican side, the incumbent Everett Addison garnered 421 votes against 401 for Roscoe R. Walcutt and 22 for S. G. Harvey.

Among unopposed state candidates and their votes in Pickaway county were John E. Sweeney, secretary of state, 1,051; Stephen Young, congressman-at-large, 1,427 votes; George Bender, G.O.P. congressman-at-large, 640.

BRIEF NOTES ON PRIMARY VOTE

First precinct to report to the board of elections was First Ward, B, where David S. Dunlap is presiding judge. The report reached the board office before 7:30 p. m., less than one hour after polls were closed. First B votes at the county engineer's office in the courthouse.

Charles Kirkpatrick, Circleville treasurer and incidentally the only Republican in Circleville's official family, was handed a Democratic ballot and was marked on the Democratic ledger in his precinct, First Ward A, before the error was discovered and corrected.

Ed Goeller, who makes his home at the New American Hotel, cast his first ballot in Circleville in 45 years Tuesday. He has been living in Detroit. Mr. Goeller believes that Grover Cleveland was running for president when he voted here the last time.

Scarcity of rural district votes was apparent from the first report, Pickaway county's farmers being too busy producing Food for Freedom to spend much time travelling to and from the polls. This fact is believed to have had much to do with results in several races.

Returns moved into the election board office at such a speed that reporters ceased sending precinct by precinct reports to The Daily Herald office and started sending accumulative totals instead. The first 12 precincts were reported individually, but after that time they came 10 at a time until they were cleaned up. There are 40 precincts in Pickaway county, 11 in Circleville and 29 in the rural areas.

Orin Dreisbach of Kingston pike signed his name so often to official election papers Tuesday that he almost developed writer's cramp. His name is one of the most frequently misspelled names in the district, his first name coming up Orrin, Orren, Oren and properly as Orin. The Dreisbachs come as Dresbach, Dresback, Dreisback. Mr. Dreisbach is chairman of the county election board, serving for the first time in that capacity. Russell Imler, who has been working for the last six weeks on the election, is serving also as clerk for the first time.

Don't kid yourself that local residents are not acquainted with who is running for what office and on what ticket. There were few calls received Tuesday night in The Herald office in which inquirers asked general questions. Nearly all wished to know who was nominated for auditor, representative and commissioner. Pickaway counties usually take their politics seriously, and, despite the light vote, nearly every one knew the candidates and the posts they were seeking.

Darby North was the last precinct to get its report to the election board, all others being cleared away quite a while before the officials from the extreme northwestern point of the county came through with their figures.
